

The Scoring Factory Academy: SEASON 3

TheScoringFactory.com

Is this AAU?

No, not yet. The grassroots basketball youth model in America has had some very obvious shortcomings for years. Our youth Academy will implement a practice heavy model and seek to teach fundamentals, encourage growth, stimulate position free offensive basketball and instill a lifelong passion for the game.

When will it be AAU?

Exposure happens at a certain age range and we believe players need to be taught and prepared before embarking on that journey. Traveling to out of town tournaments at the youth level can be a waste of resources, but most importantly can lead to a loss of focus on true player development. In the future, we will take older age groups that have played (and learned) within our system and enter AAU tournaments. Before we do this however, we want our players to be ready.

Are there games?

Yes, but no trophies. We will play games throughout the course of The Academy and they will rotate from our satellite locations. These games will have a scoreboard, but our emphasis will remain on player development. Tall kids won't be restricted to standing under the basket, shooters won't be told to stand in the corner, and players of all sizes will be encouraged to take chances in game situations. This is about growth, pure and simple.

We love the skill-work at The Scoring Factory clinics. Will there be an emphasis on skills as a part of The Academy?

Absolutely! Skill development is how we made our name and we know what we're good at. Intense skill development will be a part of all of our sessions to stimulate growth in all basketball situations.

How often and will my child practice?

There will be two practices per week with one geared primarily toward team skills and the other focused on skills development.

When do the teams practice?

There will be two weekly evening practice dates and times will be announced after Evaluations and the teams are formed.

When are tryouts?

Our "Evaluations" are held throughout the year.

What will happen during Evaluations?

Players will go through skill testing followed by game components to allow our coaching team to get an overall sense of each player's current ability and future potential.

Is financial aid available?

Yes, we have a need-based scholarship program. If you are in need of financial assistance, please let us know immediately.
